

DREW SEELEY

Drew Seeley grew up in Toronto where he first fell in love with the stage. At age 11 he was cast in Hal Prince’s revival of Showboat and stayed with the production for a year. He has guest starred on shows such as One Tree Hill, Dawson’s Creek, and Guiding Light. Drew also has a career as a musician and has toured the country as one of the lead singers of the R&B group Nu Ground.

In 2005 Drew began working with established producer Ray Cham and together they wrote “Getcha Head in the Game” for Disney’s quadruple platinum High School Musical soundtrack. This garnered them an Emmy nomination in the “Best Original Song and Lyrics” category. In addition, Drew co-starred in the North America and Latin America tours of “High School Musical: The Concert” playing in 60,000 seat arenas. Drew’s song and video “Dance with Me”, from the platinum Cheetah Girls 2 soundtrack, can be seen on the Disney Channel and he also recently appeared in Belinda Peregrin’s new music video “Ni Freud, Ni Tu Mama”.

Drew can be seen this month in the Hallmark Channel Movie entitled “Claire” opposite Valerie Bertinelli, and co-starring in the film “Fly Kidz” for which he co-wrote and produced the soundtrack. He also wrote and performed music for the Disney Channel Original Movie “Jump In!” starring Corbin Bleu. Drew is currently on a national tour performing his own original music and is recording his forthcoming debut album to be released next year. He currently lives in Los Angeles.