

SUPAFLOSS

Biography

With a unique blend of infectious rap beats combined with tounge-in-cheek lyrics, comedic hip hop duo Supafloss are blurring the line between music and sketch comedy. Michael Rivkin and Kirk Ward, both accomplished musicians and actors in their own right, got their start collaborating with Jack Black and Kyle Glass in the early stages of Tenacious D.

After forming their own group, Supafloss cut their own album and went on to produce some of the most memorable music videos on the web. They are probably best known for their song "Chuck Norris," which quickly became an on-line sensation. The video features heavy-hitters Jack Black, John C. Reilly and Chris Parnell. Topics of other tracks run the gamut from Harriett Tubman to "man-crushes" and how every band starts out as an "opening act."

Supafloss recently completed a national tour with Tenacious D, performing to sold-out crowds in venues such as Madison Square Garden.
